

GNITED MINDS
Journals

Journal of Advances and Scholarly Researches in Allied Education

*Vol. VI, Issue No. XI,
July-2013, ISSN 2230-7540*

DEVELOPING THE WRITING SKILLS IN ENGLISH LANGUAGE

AN INTERNATIONALLY
INDEXED PEER
REVIEWED &
REFEREED JOURNAL

Developing the Writing Skills in English Language

Dr. Ubaid Akram Farooqui*

Associate Professor of English, BSR Government Arts College, Alwar, Rajasthan, India

Abstract – India is emerging as a worldwide leading player in science, technology, space, business, and company sectors furthermore as in education. Critics have started seeing India as superpower or the following dominating country after the US of America. It's reported its presence all told type worldly communication. During this changing periphery, the knowledge of West Germanic is crucial, as we've to speak in English with the remainder of the globe. English has been chosen as a medium of conversation among the fast growing countries. As per the opinion of the primary Prime Minister of India, Pandit Nehru that English could be a mirror or a window to peep in to the affairs of world. Education may be a process of enlightenment and empowerment by which the individuals are able to secure better quality life. Today, education is global and a multiple social services, which must rewarded human resources fullness, commitment and freedom. The current day education is geared toward the expansion of body, mind, intellectuality, and soul. Children are humanity's greatest wealth. Many students venture out of our country in pursuing of upper education. Hence we must always welcome modern knowledge system supported old culture. It's widely accepted incontrovertible fact that knowledge must be acquired and supplemented by a lifelong learning and retaining system. The people everywhere the globe have come to depend upon English for his or her economic and social well-being. Accordingly, English language Teaching and Learning has more attention 6 than the other learning. During this regard, Kachru mentions: Just some centuries ago, English was spoken by just five to seven million people on one, relatively small island, and therefore the language consisted of dialects spoken by monolinguals. Today there are more non-native users of English, and English has become the linguistic key used for opening borders: it's a worldwide medium with local identities and messages.

Key Words – English, Learning, Decolonization, Communication, Writing, International Language.

----- X -----

INTRODUCTION

The most important reason for the success of English is of course the historical role of England as a colonial power. He also lists another reasons for the dominance of English round the world: it's propensity for acquiring new identities, it's power of assimilation, it's adaptability to "decolonization" as a language, and it's provision of a versatile medium for literary and other sorts of creativity across languages and cultures. In the contemporary computer age, English is an authorization for better career. It plays a really noteworthy role in international domains like politics, media and communication, education, business, advertising, broadcasting, motion pictures and transport. It's the dominant world language of science and technology. No other languages like Spanish, Chinese, French, and Russian may be compared to the position occupied by English as a global language. People everywhere the world rely on English for his or her wellbeing. English is learnt everywhere because people have revealed that it's the entry card for better career, better pay package, and advanced knowledge and for communication with the complete world. With the growing impact of globalization and privatization, English has become a window to the planet, because it is creating more and more opportunities in every field of life. English is that the global language because it is connecting different people from everywhere the planet, different cultures, languages and political and economic issues in our day-to-day lives. During this age of data and technology, as we are constantly barraging by information, English because the major medium which supplies access to update information. It plays important role all told parts of the planet, as dead their lives are feeling its necessity. Therefore, there's a large growing within the number of individuals learning English. In step with, the quantity of individuals, learning English is probably going to succeed in a peak of around two billion within the next 10-15 years. Because the internet is growing explosively, English is instrumental keep us on par with it. It's emerging as a primary rank language because it has affected all aspects of human society.

ENGLISH IN INDIAN SCENARIO

Keeping in mind the worldwide acknowledgment being given to English, the Indian Government has been formulating various policies to push the employment and spread of English. Despite the actual fact that Hindi is that the national language of India, English ruins as a national inter language to a greater degree. India has had extended exposure to English than other country within the world. English incorporates a definite place within the curriculum of Indian educational institutions like in schools, colleges and universities. In fact, the teaching of English in India is taken into account a second or third language. Moreover, it's been accepted widely. English is a linguistic tool for administrative communication within the country, affecting people that speak different languages to become uniformed and thus it is a medium of wider communication. Nation language could be a bind that helps to attach the numerous constituent parts of the society together. It's also a linguistic bridge among the key countries of the globe and India. English encompasses a special national status in India, because it's been placed within the parliamentary, judiciary, broadcasting, and journalism within the education system. Within the field of education, English functions as a language for propagation of data. Information in every field, whether is humanities, science, commerce or technology, is instantly accessible in English. Therefore, English language learning has become necessary for all Indians including rural learners. With the growing technology and outsourcing, proficiency in English has indeed become the essential criterion for acquiring employment. The prevailing view in India seems to be that unless students learn English, they will only add limited job sectors. Those that don't have basic knowledge of English cannot obtain good fetching jobs. Men and women, who cannot understand and interpret English, are unemployed whether or not they're well educated. It cannot be ignored the very fact that for people who realize that learning English is that the necessity have lots of job opportunities today.

ENGLISH LANGUAGE TEACHING IN INDIA

Taking in consideration of these factors, ELT in India is becoming a flourishing and profitable industry where private expensive English medium schools exist side by side with almost free regional medium schools maintained by the government or local bodies. If British people taught English for administrative convenience to a minority, ELT is taught today in India because the language for social and economic upheaval towards global transformation. Sardonicly, though Hindi is the national language there are more English schools than Hindi medium schools. A hindi medium schools may go for the regional language because the second language in place of Hindi but within the Hindi medium schools, English is a minimum of taught as a compulsory subject. Therefore, the relevance of ELT to the Indian educational scenario cannot be declined. Since English is that the most significant language for education, many colleges and institutions have developed various ELT programmes with many new institutions of ELT taking shapes each year. With its importance, research in ELT is expanding. ELT has thus become a robust tool which will lead the country towards a highly developed state. The Indian society is developing multi-dimensionally; so it's important for each Indian to own some mastery in English. The impact of English isn't only continuing but also increasing, because within the English-speaking world, India contains a unique position. A decade ago, the US of America was the country with the biggest English speaking population. Today, India has over taken it. Therefore, definitely, a change are remarkable within the future. Thus, a positive attitude towards English as a national language is crucial for the Indian society. Owing this quantum increase within the number of faculties and colleges and also the enrollment of scholars, the quantity of scholars learning English has increased multifold. This has resulted within the problem of getting incompetent teachers of English, which lowers the quality of learners. English is introduced as a compulsory second language from primary level onwards for college kids of regional medium schools, which has contributed to Bilingual education. English medium education being costly isn't within the reach of the foremost of the learners studying in Government schools in India and as a result, only the private educational institutions offer English medium education. So, learners from the class of the society are forced to travel to Government schools, where regional medium education with English as a second or third language is the only option. Learners who come from regional medium schools lack required disclosure to West Germanic. These learners don't have a remarkable and supporting environment to find out English. For these learners, the sole opportunity to find out English is the classroom atmosphere. Various other factors like poor economic background, illiterate parents, lack of resources, etc. With the varied policies of the govt., true seems improving, but still plenty has got to be done to form possible English people learning environment within the schools, colleges, and universities of India. So as to become proficient in English, the four language skills (LSRW) are important, so adequate help and guidance is inevitable to boost the language skills of learners of English as a second language.

EXPERTS ON WRITING SKILL

Language could be a one amongst the tools for communication among the kinsfolk. Writing skills could be a part of language and it requires meticulous effort to attain the mastery over it. Writing skill helps learners to be told. Therefore, Raimes says, how does it help one to learn? Firstly, writing reinforces the grammatical structures, idioms and vocabulary that the scholars may are taught; Secondly, when the scholars write they need an opportunity to use language to be explored what they need to mention and judge on how best to mention what they need to mention. Thirdly, when students write, the trouble to elucidate ideas is there. Because the writers struggle with what to place down next or the way to put it down on paper - they often discover something unaccustomed write or new way of expressing their idea. The writing skill paves way for learning because it has been interlinked with other aspects of language like syntax, sorts of sentences, idioms, proverbs, vocabulary and its rules. Students also learn through writing skill the utilization of language in day-to-day communication. Students feel the frustration in producing and organizing ideas into meaningful discourse to speak. Writing is the record of a concept developing. It's a process whereby an initial idea gets extended and refined. He thinks, toys with a concept and develops it. Writing is cognitive operation wherein ideas or thoughts are recorded on the piece of paper to take care of it for extended period. Writing is an elevated style of idea processed within the brain and so converts into the written form to stay it as an evidence of information. Writing allows us to own our ideas immediately available for review, reevaluation, and a process that may lead us to reconsider and refine our ideas, i.e. to be told what we predict by writing. Writing could be a thinking process at various stages. Writing is best understood as a collection of distinctive thinking processes during which writers attempt to organize during the act of composing. Writing is originating and creating a novel verbal constant that's graphically recorded. Writing may be a skill, and like other skills, it's to be acquired. Writing is important to convey ideas, give instructions, share and preserve knowledge then on. Even though writing is incredibly important but in some cases, it's never considered as a vital skill. Writing isn't nearly using correct spelling, organizing words and concepts and following grammar, it's far more than that. Perhaps, writing is the final and also the most thorny skill students learn if they ever do. This statement indicates the complexity of writing skills is felt because of its technicalities among the teachers also as students. To provide ideas on the paper, one should brainstorm about the subject within the language within which he wants to speak. Moreover, it's a final skill because scientifically writing skill comes after the talents listening, speaking, and reading that one starts learning any language. There's no point in predicting that writing is simple. Indeed, confident cognitive psychologists have described it because the most complex demanding of all cognitive activities undertaken by kinsmen because there are not any rules.

DEVELOPING WRITING SKILL THROUGH READING SKILL

Writing skill has interconnection with reading skill. Acquisition depends upon four fundamental skills. The four skill i.e. listening, speaking, reading, and writing are often divided into two groups like receptive skill and productive skill. Listening skill and reading skill are considered to be receptive skills because these skills help learner to receive the data within the language which he/she wants to command over. It's researched if anyone wants to find out second language or language apart from the mother tongue; one should be trained in a very way that he's ready to communicate fluently in this language. Everybody is born with one language and it's well thought-out as mother tongue or the natural language of that person. Environment could be a crucial part in developing any language during which person lives. The kid listens the instruction within the language with which his members of the family are familiar. He's nurtured and trained within the tongue. Initially, he gets command within the first language. Although, he has no sufficient knowledge of that language as in terms of its grammar, phrase structure, vocabulary, punctuation etc. he's capable to handle communication either in oral form or in written form with fewer errors in it. It signifies that one will be perfect in any language if particular language surrounding is provided to him. Within the same way, listening and reading are helpful to develop learner's critical faculties to understand the language properly.

CONCLUSION

Writing skill at undergraduate has to be taken care equally by students and teachers because it is requisite for being established in professional field. It's required to own ability to think, arrange and express their views and concepts in written form by using correct English. This article discussed the issues of teachers and students in developing writing skill in English. The syllabus is additionally obstacle at some extent to command over writing skills because it lacks in activities, tasks, content, and practice of four language skills. Writing skill can't be mastered by attending one semester syllabus and spending the examination given at the tip of the primary semester. Tragically, the image of syllabus is weak during a way that student cannot achieve mastery over the writing skill, which has been great headaches for researchers and critics since the inception of acquisition in education. The curriculum of universities of north Gujarat doesn't have appropriate language skills division therefore there's no meaning of teaching communication skills or English. In majority of the universities, land is taught within the name of communication skill but ironically, students aren't able to produce error free write up after attending the classes of communication skill. Students are poor in writing skill for thus many reasons, which are elaborated within the chapter. The chapter proceeds with latest methodologies for developing undergraduate students' writing skill in English. The teaching of writing skill should become memorable rather than tiresome. Hence, teachers should adopt communicative approach to show writing skill in a stimulating way. Within the age of 21st century, the method of teaching is simpler and more learners centered. Technology is at its peak of success. Country pedagogy is additionally not behind in terms of using various tools and mediums to form language classroom interactive.

REFERENCES

1. Banatwala Ayesha. (1979). Designing a course in written English for the first year in B.A. in SNDT Women's University. Diss. Hyderabad: EFLU.
2. Banerjee, A.K. (2005). Modern Teaching of English. Jaipur: Avishkar Publishers and Distributors.
3. Barun K.Mitra (2012). Effective Technical Communication: A Guide for Scientists and Engineers. New Delhi: Oxford University Press.
4. Bax, S. (2003). 'The end of CLT: A context approach to language teaching', ELT Journal, 57, 278-287. Retrieved from www.eljournal.com. on 21 aug.2012.
5. Brown, H.D. (1994). Teaching by Principles: An Interactive Approach to Language Pedagogy. Engle wood Cliffs, N.J, Prentice Hall Regents.
6. Chauhan, Kirankumar I. (2012). English Language Learner in Primary Schools of Gujarat: A Sociolinguistic Perspective. ELT Voices-India International Electronic Journal for the teachers of English. Volume 2 Issue 5. Retrieved from eltvoices.in. on 10 Mar.2013.
7. F. Abdul, Rahim. (1996). Thesis Writing: A Manual for Researchers. New Delhi: New Age International (P) Limited, Publishers.
8. Jayanthi, N.L.N. (2011). ELT in India- Need for New Thrust. Language in India. Vol.11:4.
9. Joshi, Neha (2008). Effectiveness of a Remedial Programme on Grammatical Errors in Writing of Engineering Students. M.Phil. Dissertation Sardar Patel University, V. V. Nagar.

---

Corresponding Author

Dr. Ubaid Akram Farooqui***

Associate Professor of English, BSR Government Arts College, Alwar, Rajasthan, India